

An independent agent separates merged cells in the same region; this is a local correction.